Lessons learnt from judgement of Connaught Place shoot-out

325. SHRI MOTIUR RAHMAN. Will the Minister of HOME AFFAIRS be pleased to state:

(a) whether a court of Delhi has held on 31st March, 1997 in fake shoot-out case in Connaught Place, Delhi that the crime committed by Police was very serious and was an open violation of human rights but the court did not consider it appropriate to award death penalty to the accused; and

(b) if so, the lessons learnt by Delhi Police of this case and the action taken to ensure that henceforth no citizen of the country will be victimized by Police and to safeguard their human rights?

THE MINISTER OF STATE IN THE MINISTRY OF HOME AFFA:RS (SHRIMATI V. RADHIKA SELVI): (a) and (b) Yes Sir. However, Delhi Police is yet to receive a copy of the judgment. It is noteworthy that Delhi Police has been making sincere efforts even before the judgment of this case to sensitize its officers and to give top priority to safeguarding of human rights of the citizens. All complaints, in which police officers have been alleged to have violated human rights, are enquired into by the Vigilance Unit of the Police Head Quarters (PHQ) headed by the Special Commissioner of Police (Vigilance) and by the Vigilance Units of each District headed by an Assistant Commissioner of Police (Public Grievances). The supervisory staff has also been briefed to take preventive as well as remedial measures to check violations of human rights. This is also an important part of the curriculum at the Police Training College (PTC).
